WEISS MEMORIAL HOSPITAL

Carlos Rotman, M.D.

Carlos Rotman, M.D., FA.C.O.G., FA.C.S, is the medical director of Women's Health and chief of gynecology at Weiss Memorial Hospital. He leads a new program at the hospital that specializes in laparoscopic surgery, gynecological oncology, urological gynecology and robotic surgery of the pelvis and abdomen.

Dr. Rotman is a board-certified gynecologist, certified in advanced operative laparoscopy, and dedicated to creating and advancing new techniques and instrumentation in the field of laparoscopic surgery. He performs minimally invasive surgeries to treat many gynecologic conditions, including large/multiple uterine fibroids, extensive endometriosis and hydrosalpinx.

He and his team of surgeons recently were awarded First Prize by the American Congress of Obstetricians and Gynecologists for their video presentation, "Alternatives to Hysterectomy," and published both the largest series of laparoscopic tubal reversals and the largest series of laparoscopic incidental appendectomies in the literature.

Dr. Rotman said, "These surgeries provide immense relief for patients, and the laparoscopic, minimally invasive techniques provide shorter, less difficult recoveries; so I am delighted to work with the medical-surgical team to meet patient needs at Weiss."

A native of Argentina, Dr. Rotman earned his medical degree from the University of Buenos Aires and continued training with his residency and internship at Cook County Hospital. In addition to his surgical practice, he serves as Associate Professor of Obstetrics and Gynecology at Rush Medical College.

Danielle Bass, M.D.

Danielle Bass, M.D., a general medicine physician with a focus on sports medicine, is part of the Chicago Center for Orthopedics (CCO) at Weiss Memorial Hospital.

To meet patient needs, Dr. Bass is helping to lead the CCO's recently opened Urgent Care, where weekend warriors can seek treatment for everything from a rotator cuff tear to a sprained ankle on Sunday morning (9 a.m. to 1 p.m.), a time few other doctors are available.

"A lot of injuries occur on weekends, to kids and adults," Dr. Bass said. "Typically, it's quicker to get into a clinic setting (as opposed to the ER) where most patients feel more comfortable. We're here to give patients treatment options that will make them heal quicker."

Dr. Bass has been an athlete since her youth, so she empathizes with the aches, pains and injuries of her patients. She earned her medical degree from Florida State University; but while completing her undergraduate degree, she was a member of the University of Florida Women's 1998 National Championship Soccer Team, so she knows what it takes to be an elite athlete and the importance of getting back in the game as quickly as possible.

Dr. Bass has served as team physician for the Women's Professional Soccer League and the U.S. Olympic Weightlifting Team at the World's Championship in Turkey. She is the team physician for St. Rita High School, St. Ignatius College Prep, and Chicago State University.

Her passion for diagnosing primary care sports injuries along with non-operative treatments for athletes helps her connect with her sports-minded patients.

Thank you.

At Adventist Midwest Health, we appreciate the dedicated, caring physicians who have made a difference in each of our patients' lives. Wednesday, March 30th is National Doctor's Day. On behalf of our staff and the thousands of patients treated every year ... thank you.
